HOLD TWO YOUNG MEN UNDER BAIL FOR COURT

Charge Both With Larceny; and One With Operating Car While Intoxicated

HAD STOLEN VEHICLE

Two Bristol young men were held for court today following a hearing held in the municipal building here before Justice of the peace Edward Lynn.

Early this morning John Manera, Mill street and highway, reported to Bristol police and the state highway patrol, that someone had stolen a Ford car from the yard alongside of the Manera garage. Both the Bristol police and the highway patrol began immediate check-up of all motor vehicles on the highways. Corporal Evans of the state highway patrol, South Langhorne barracks, caught up with the machine on Otter street near the intersection of route 13, at South Bristol. In the machine were Clarence McCoy, 214 Dorrance street, and Edward Margerum, 429 Buckley street.

Corporal Evans brought both men to the municipal building, and McCoy was pronounced under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He admitted stealing the car, and said he picked up Margerum at Bath and Buckley streets, after stealing the vehicle. The two then went for a joy-ride.

McCoy was charged with larceny, driving an automobile while intoxicated, and operating a motor vehicle without a license. He pleaded guilty this morning, and was fined $10 and costs for driving without a license, and held in $800 bail on the two charges of larceny and operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

Margerum was held in $500 bail on a charge of larceny. Margerum entered a guilty plea along with McCoy.

"DEATH RAYS" STILL QUESTION MARK IN ANTI-AIR DEFENSE

Big Claims Made For Devices of Matthews

An International News Service correspondent continues from London the series of dispatches from European capitals detailing the dramatic story of the mobilization of whole populations for the coming struggle. This is the eighth article.

LONDON, July 12—(INS)—Has a "death ray" been discovered?

Nothing has been the cause of more speculation than recurrent reports from Bavaria, Austria, Italy, the United States and England itself, of the discovery of devices capable of shooting an electric force powerful enough to cripple the ignition of air-

FLIGHT INTO STRATOSPHERE COMES TO END AN HOUR BEFORE STARTING TIME, AS GIANT BAG RIPS AND RELEASES HELIUM

Cause Not Determined—Entire Top Blown Off—Captain Stevens, Commander of National Geographic Expedition and His Companions Unhurt Although Trapped Under the Cloth

HOPES SHATTERED BEFORE START

Scientific equipment of the latest design was installed in the gondola as the Army-National Geographic expedition prepared for stratosphere flight from the expedition's camp near Rapid City, S. D. But one hour before starting time today the huge bag, containing helium, ripped, bringing preparations to a sudden halt.

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 12—With a huge puff that sent 375,000 cubic feet of helium into the clear night air, man's latest flight to explore the stratosphere, came to an ignominious end today an hour before it was to begin.

The cause, not yet determined, blew the entire top off the gigantic canvas bag which was to carry the giant expedition of the United States Army Air Corps and the National Geographic Society into the rarified atmosphere for scientific study.

Although six persons, including Captain Stevens, commander of the expedition, were trapped under the cloth, no one was seriously injured. He indicated that future flight plans for the summer depended on the results of an investigation. The rip, which extended three-quarters of the way down the side of the balloon from the top, occurred at 3 a. m. Just a few minutes before three, the 12-foot gondola was wheeled into position and workers started attaching it to the bag which was 235 feet up in the air. A worker started stretching one of the lines leading from the top of the balloon when a loud explosion was heard and the stratosphere flight was off.

HOSPITAL LAWN FETE TO BE PURELY LOCAL AFFAIR

Big Annual Event To Be Conducted For One Week Beginning July 15th

SOME OF THE PLEASURES

The Harriman Hospital lawn fete, an annual affair, is to be a purely local project this year, according to a statement issued today by those backing the event. "It is to be a real, old-fashioned lawn fete, something that the people of our town and from the surrounding section will thoroughly enjoy," said a spokesman for the group today. "Everyone who visits the fete will get their full money's worth, and may feel assured they will have the royal, good time they are looking forward to."

One of the chief attractions is "Joe, the Dodger," a local colored youth, who is claimed to be too fast with his head for tossers of the balls to hit. "Joe" projects his head from a piece of canvas, and then various twirlers and would-be twirlers attempt to hit "Joe," and to say that few are successful speaks well for his head-speed. But those whose aim proves true, and ball swift, are rewarded with a gift.

From the night of the 15th of July to the 29th, inclusive, attendants at the fete will have an opportunity to enjoy the concessions which also include a merry-go-round; try to hit "Joe" on the head; and eat their fill of ice cream, candy, hot "doks," peanuts; and enjoy cooling drinks.

As a boost for the business men there is to be the "Business Men's Tower," with those who attend the fete having brought to their attention by means of the tower surrounding the flag-pole, the various methods by which local business men can serve them.

The preparations for the past two weeks have been intensive; and from the color schemes being arranged, a gala time is assured.

Chief of Police Cooper made the arrest after many complaints had been made by residents here about the circulars which are thrown on porches and in yards. There is an ordinance in Morrisville prohibiting the placing of circulars on porches or throwing them in the yards or streets.

PERSONAL NEWS NOTES

TULLYTOWN, July 12—The new fire alarm system which was recently installed in the borough has now been completed. The system has been tested out and found to be "o. k."

Within a short time signals will be worked out in order to tell which box is being used.

The one button which may be confusing is the one at the houses near the community house. Plans are going forward to install a light at the fire house which will signal when this button is sounding the alarm.

BOY, 22 MONTHS OLD, FATALLY INJURED BY TRUCK AT ANDALUSIA

Ronald Kidd Dies in Frankford Hospital of Injuries Received

RAN ACROSS STREET

Boy and Man Injured in Auto Accident at Southampton Road at 2nd St. Pike

ANDALUSIA, July 12—A 22-month old boy was fatally injured yesterday afternoon in front of his home, as he attempted to cross the street to his mother and some children.

The child died in the Frankford Hospital at 5:15 yesterday afternoon. The truck which injured the youth was driven by a Bristol man.

The victim was Ronald Kidd, 22 months old, Whittier avenue, Penn Manor, Andalusia.

The driver of the truck was Bernard Dennen, 257 Jackson street, Bristol.

According to the mother of the child, she and some children were on the opposite side of the street from the Kidd residence. Ronald was on the other side of the street with two other children, one of which was Doris Howarth, a neighbor. It is thought that suddenly Ronald decided to run across the roadway, which is little traveled in the Penn Manor section of this village, and it is believed that the youngster ran into one of the wheels of the truck, which was passing at the time.

The mother and children and Doris Howarth attempted to grab Ronald by the arm and prevent him from going into the highway.

William Howarth, a neighbor, and the child's mother, rushed the injured child to physicians and then to the Frankford Hospital, where he died of internal injuries.

In addition to the parents, John and Eleanor Kidd, a sister and a brother survive.

Dennen was arrested by State Highway Patrolman and held in $2000 bail to await the action of the coroner.

LANGHORNE, July 12—A boy and a man were injured last night when an automobile and a truck collided at the intersection of Southampton Road and Second Street Pike. George Ermentrout, 11 years old, of Southampton, who was riding in a car operated by his brother, Charles Benton Ermentrout, received lacerations of the eye. He was treated at Abington Hospital. The driver was uninjured.

Elmer Johnson, of 128 Austin avenue, Trenton, received lacerations of the forehead and was treated by a Southampton doctor. Trooper Jacoby, of Doylestown State Police, investigated.

HOT DOG HAS ITS DAY

The plebian hot dog has won its way to a position as a great American institution, possibly even a great American institution, and also has acquired a measure of international prestige. This statement is based not on Mrs. Roosevelt's recent revelation of the favorite presidential sandwich, but on figures published in Review of Reviews.

According to these statistics, 4,500,000,000 hot dogs are consumed annually in the United States, an average of 36 to each man, woman and child. Translated into poundage, the annual hot dog consumption is around 400,000,000 pounds, more than three pounds per capita.

In brief, Americans eat a lot of hot dogs. They owe this form of nourishment in large degree, it seems, to Harry Stevens who long catered to baseball crowds at the Polo Grounds, New York. About 1900, Stevens found that the hot dog's tight skin kept the interior warm on cold days at ball games. Thenceforth he specialized in that form of sandwich. The hot dog was not then known as the hot dog. T. A. Dorgan, Tad, the cartoonist, invented that name about 1907.

A hot dog, under any other name, is just as hot. And it has plenty of other names both in the United States and abroad. For the hot dog no longer is 100 per cent. American. It is popular in many other lands, notably Japan, France and Russia. In the last named country it is known as iachie sobachi, which offers an idea of what those bolsheviki would do to American institutions if given half a chance.

ANNOYED BY CROONERS

On her one hundredth birthday, Mrs. Lara Fiske Evans, a lively lady of Alexandria, Virginia, can think of nothing in the modern world which definitely annoys her but crooners. It is by all odds the hardest things we have heard said about the species.

If Mrs. Evans is 100 she has lived through trying interludes in the history of American popular songs and singing thereof. The survival of Stephen Foster's immortal melodies tends to make us oblivious to the fact that the same age produced excruciatingly bad music as well. "Call Me Pet Names, Dearest" and "Was That Croquet?", confessions of the '50s, are still extant in the anthologies and will give the reader a rough idea. Some of the election songs of the same age constitute the farthest south in our native music.

We need not go into the cycles that ensued, the ballad that ended at the grave, the allegedly comic songs of early minstrelsy, the Charles K. Harris school of lost child laments, the syrupy sadness of Monroe Rosenfield, the Irish-Indian interlude, the South Seas lyrics, the horrendous ditties that went by the name of "rags," and the Hawaiian plague and others of our time. All these Mrs. Evans has survived and is prepared to nominate the crooner and his music the least bearable of the lot.

It is an appalling indictment.

Aimee McPherson has returned to our midst with red enameled toenails. Shellacking the whole foot is good, in case of having to walk back from another desert.

Living will be altered in many particulars by a renaissance of the horse and buggy. You can't bring on a needed rain by washing a horse.

Heat Records Topped

A heat wave that sent records tumbling on every front, gave Pennsylvania its hottest day of the summer today. As the mercury, which started its spurt yesterday soared near the 90 mark, weather forecasters threw up their hands in disgust. They had nothing but heat resulting from a scorching sun and lack of wind, that is expected to shoot the mercury up to between 95 and 100, Pittsburgh experienced the hottest July 11th in the history of its weather bureau yesterday with the temperature hitting 92. A similar reading was reported at Johnstown where one heat death was recorded. After suffering under a 92 Harrisburg looked for at least 94 today, while Philadelphia felt lucky to escape with 93.

six crows of men who were dragging the river in an attempt to locate the body, were called to shore.

Marlin arrived at Croydon, July 4th, to visit his grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Martin, Emille avenue. He went bathing Tuesday afternoon with the children in the neighborhood. Marlin, like the other children, made an improvised raft of leaves and long grasses on which he attempted to float. He was carried beyond his depth and got into the channel.

Grappling was started at once to bring the body to the surface and was continued until near midnight Tuesday. Wednesday morning the volunteer crews again set out and worked from daylight until mid-night and continued to work in this manner until informed the body had been recovered.

The victim wore a bathing suit when he was bathing but it is presumed that his clothing was caught and that the swift current due to the flood waters resulted in it being torn off. His body showed evidences of being bruised.

All Croydon and Bristol police joined in an effort to locate the body and the newly-made beach, where the drowning occurred, has been the mecca for hundreds since the accident.

In addition to the parents, four sisters and a brother survive.

Word of the finding of the body was telephoned by the Philadelphia police to the Marlin family at Croydon and also to the Bristol police. The father who had kept a constant vigil at the spot where his son drowned, left immediately for Philadelphia accompanied by his father and a brother-in-law. Mrs. Marlin remained at Croydon.

Divers from the Philadelphia navy yard did not arrive at Croydon yesterday as had been planned.

"Death Rays" Still Question Mark in Anti-Air Defense

works in a studio and laboratory. His privacy is ensured by steel doors, barred wire and burglar alarms.

Col. P. T. Eaherton, one of the few men who has visited Matthews' laboratory, came back with a sensational story of the experimenter's plans. These include:

To perfect a device for detecting the presence of submarines 30 miles away.
To discover a ray to kill disease germs.

To set up a new aerial defense for London, or any other city, by rockets and steel-wire "aprons" ranging in the sky.

To speed rocket airplanes to travel at a velocity of six miles a second carrying loads of explosives.

"It will be possible in time," Eaherton quoted Matthews as saying, "to arrange an electric charge with lightning speed to arrest airplanes in mid-flight, to stop motors and internal combustion engines in their tracks."

"This ray will naturally cost a great deal to operate over long distances."

An airplane caught by his "protective" ray would not be destroyed but, with its engines useless, would be forced to land.

Matthews' promised rocket projectiles which would have a short trajectory, would soar thousands of feet high, explode, and pour out steel "rain" attached to floats. The steel, thin as silk thread, would crash attacking airplanes by tangling up their propellers.

If warnings were received of a raid on London, for instance, rockets would be shot to the height of 30,000 feet in 4½ seconds. The wire curtain would surround London.

Eherton indicated that so far his Grindell-Matthews progressed on his ray that there is a probability that he will give a demonstration of it this summer.

THE SNOW LEOPARD by Chris Hawthorne

SYNOPSIS

As Dick Bannister, young explorer, emerges from the exclusive Park Avenue residence hotel of his brother, Hod, the body of a man comes hurtling through the air, followed by a snow leopard robe. The man, obviously a servant, had fallen about twenty stories. Shortly after, Dick notices a beautiful girl, standing in the doorway, order her chow to bring the robe to her. Dick's airedale, "Bully," fights with the chow for possession of it. When the girl finally retrieves it—in pieces—she hastily runs her fingers over it and exclaims: "The clasp and girdle—gone!" Never had Dick been so attracted by any girl. She is Karen Sire, daughter of the multi-millionaire, Maurice Sire. The police summon Dick to the Sire apartment as a witness. Detective Captain Boyle claims the dead man, a Filipino, was murdered—stabbed in the back. Karen was the only other person in the room when he fell. Maurice Sire telephones that he is flying up from Washington, D. C. He was surprised to learn his daughter was in New York instead of at school in Poughkeepsie. Boyle wheels on Karen. "How about that? You've come gallivanting down to New York without letting your father know. Who was with you?"

CHAPTER III

Miss Sire smiled, elevating her eyebrows with a faintly whimsical expression. Something of that tolerance which people of breeding show to well meaning bores crept into her voice. "Gallivanting," she repeated, "you've hit upon the very word, captain. But I was alone. You see, my father had taken this place only recently, and I had never seen it. Our home is at Southampton—this is to serve as a town house. I came down here yesterday just to look it over. I'm going back tomorrow."

"Oh, are you?" Boyle grew sarcastic. "We'll see about that. Let me tell you, miss, that a lot of explaining will have to be done before you go back to Poughkeepsie. You're detained by the police, as they say in the papers."

He paused with a satisfied grin, apparently conscious of having delivered himself with force and authority. After which, he picked once more into Bannister. "I suppose you'll be wanting to go away too—on important business, hey?"

"I had a trip to Nova Scotia in mind, beginning tonight."

"Oh, you did? Well, just consider that trip cancelled. We may need you as a material witness."

Miss Sire smiled faintly. "I'll agree to stay," she said in a small voice.

"So will I," Bannister volunteered. Captain Boyle rose. "I'm going below and talk to the servants again," he said, addressing the man with the tilted derby. "I want you to stay."

"We'll be delighted," thrust in Miss Sire. "Perhaps the gentleman will take off his hat and make himself one of us. I don't believe I caught his name."

"You didn't," said the man with the derby (he had risen and removed it) "because my name wasn't mentioned." He hung his hat on an ornament of the aquarium and walked to the window, unbugled by this somewhat fresh young person who didn't seem to understand the trouble she was in.

A pause and a silence followed Boyle's leave-taking. His subordinate, with back turned but ears obviously alert, remained near the window. Bannister was gazing at the pendant derby, which cast a deep shadow down into the water of the aquarium, leaving only a broad band of light on clear water. Clear water? No. It was a brackish pink. He became interested.

Why pink water in an aquarium? He walked nearer and gazed down into the depths. Little blue and silvery fish moved in and out of the miniature castle at the bottom. There were no goldfish—nothing to create the illusion of a reddish cast in the water. Yes, it was pink—not a pink to suggest the tinge of a rose, but a pink of queer and sinister shade.

"Blood!" he breathed.

Bannister turned a penetrating gaze upon Miss Sire. She returned it without a sign of emotion, permitting her eyes to move slowly to the silent guardian at the window. "Mr. Officer," she said graciously, "I think you'll find something to drink in that room." She pointed to an open door.

"Mr. Officer" thawed. "Toole's my name—One-Armed Toole," he said. Yet it was with no undignified haste that he moved toward the door indicated.

Bannister listened until he heard the clink of glass and the gush of a syphon. Then he plunged his arm into the aquarium and drew forth a stiletto of triple-edged pattern. "Yours?" he asked, turning to Miss Sire.

"No," she answered calmly. "One-Armed" Toole, drawing his right and left hands carelessly across his mouth, reappeared in the doorway. He had two perfectly sound and muscular looking arms, but neither Bannister nor Miss Sire were just then in a mood to press a question on the anomaly.

"Good Scotch, Mr. Bannister!" he said unctuously, "why don't you take a paste at it?"

"Thanks," Bannister replied coolly, thrusting the palm of his hand into his trousers pocket and keeping his hand there, "with Miss Sire's permission, I will take a something more important on his mind than the prospect of dunking his tonsils in Scotch whisky when he walked into that room alone. The murder weapon was still in his pocket; by concealing it he had become an accomplice after the fact. He wondered if Toole had been a witness of the dramatic interlude between himself and Karen Sire, or not, having seen it, suspected anything.

He dinked two bottles together, set them down without taking a drink, and squeezed the water out of his coat sleeve with a crunching grip. The thought of hiding the stiletto came to him, but he figured that this would only bog himself and the girl deeper in suspicion if Toole actually had seen him take it from the aquarium.

Bannister found himself trying to protect Karen Sire, and, at the same time, fiercely denying any thought of her guilt. He associated this girl with the soft pulse of life, the velvet patter of ease, the security of wealth and social position. He knew women, but few in her station. His excursions to the court of Venus had been confined to frothy dance halls, to the huts of hillbillies, to jungle arbors and the sands of South Sea beaches.

The young geologist had met sun-baked girls of the desert, blonde Cyprians, brown charmers, Eurasian nymphs and mestizo maids. They had all found him cold and left him so. But the first sight of Karen Sire had changed all this; she had flung a rainbow across his horizon, set golden bells tinkling in his brain, and hung the gray copings of the city with scintillant prisms. Was the joyous delirium to prove a dream? Was the grisly hand of murder to sweep it all away?

With the stiletto still in his pocket he rejoined Miss Sire and the detective. At the same moment a wide panel in the wall opened and Captain Boyle stepped into the room from an electric elevator, a stout, strongly made woman at his elbow.

The man's face was set; a cold fury seemed to possess him. Evidently he had returned from the floor beset with an empty bag.

"Here's your new maid, Miss Sire," he snapped. "She's a police-

EDGELY BRAVES INCREASE MARGIN ON SECOND PLACE

Registering a pair of markers in the final session, the Edgely Braves increased their margin on second place in the Lower Bucks County League and kept on the heels of the league-leading Hibernians, by noting out the Bristol A. A. club, 7-5, on Leedom's field, last night.

The duo of tallies came after the Mulhollanders had staged a last-minute rally and sheer grit and power had come from behind to deadlock the count. A pinch-hitter, Pat McCarthy, delivered the blow which caused the score to be evened. As McCarthy had batted for Tryon, Manager Mulholland inserted Ralph Stromp into the pitcher's box. Stromp was no trouble to the Braves who pushed over the winning run.

"Pete" Firce hurled the entire match for the Edgelyites and was quite shaky at the start, yielding three runs in the first two frames. However, he settled down and for the next three cantoes was invincible. An error by Malmesbury paved the way for the A. A.'s two runs which tied the count in the sixth. After getting the two run lead in the seventh, Firce retired the three Bristol batters easily.

"Danny" Hines pulled the best fielding play of the evening in the fifth when he raced to beyond the foul line to nab Choma's foul liner. The winners had three errors during the contest while the A's were charged with four.

With the score deadlocked at the beginning of the seventh, L. Hibbs socked a bouncer over the pitcher's box which Heftman fumbled. Hibbs was sacrificed to second and went to third on Paul's grounder to Choma. A ball which got away from Dougherty allowed Hibbs to score. Wright was passed. Firce singled to right, Wright stopping at third. Malmesbury delivered in the pinch and scored Wright with a single to left. Hines struck out.

The A. A. had deadlocked the score in their half of the sixth when Dugan opened with a hit along the left field foul line. Heftman fled out to L. Hibbs. Mondo hit to Malmesbury who threw wide to second, placing runners on third and second. Stromp fled to short right, Dugan holding on to third. McCarthy batted for Tryon and singled over second, counting Dugan and Mondo. McCarthy continued to third when Wright allowed the ball to roll between his legs to deep center. Dougherty fled out.

Seven Years Ago Today—

"Bill" Fine drove in both runs as the Leedom's nine blanked the Hibernians, 2-0, in a Bristol Twilight League game played on St. Ann's field. In the first after Cooper had walked and stole second, Fine singled him across. In the third, Connors singled and was sent home on a double to left by the Leedom shortstop. In the sixth, Fine made his third hit of the evening but was caught off first. The losing aggregation could master but four hits off "Bill" Jones; three of these came in the fourth. McGinley, Holden and H. Brady hit consecutively in this frame but McGinley was nipped at the plate on a fine throw to White by Harvey Cochrane.

HIBERNIANS WIN FIFTH STRAIGHT BALL GAME

The Hibernians chalked up their fifth consecutive win of the second half of the Lower Bucks County League last night, swamping the Newportville A. A. nine, 10-1, in a one-sided affair played on the Newportville diamond.

"Bernie" Lyzack did the twirling for the Big Green and continued the fine work of the Hibs' moundsmen. He limited the Newporters to but two hits, one in the second and one in the sixth. The only tally of the losers came in the second when Gerhart was hit with a pitched ball, advanced on a passed ball and counted on Cameron's hit. Richerson was passed but nothing came of it.

In the five games played the second half, no team has scored more than two runs in the contests against the Hibernians. Two games were won by 3-2 scores while the other frays were not even close.

"Timmy" Harrison again aided the Hibernians with the stick and on the defense. In the second he doubled to score two runs and in the sixth he again doubled. In the sixth he robbed Mellor of a possible double by a leaping gloved-hand catch of his liner.

The Newporters passed up several opportunities to score on Lyzack as the Polish hurler was wild and issued six passes. Several times his support failed him but in the pinches it was airtight.

Line-up:

HULMEVILLE A. A. OUT TO WIN SECOND-HALF

Hulmeville A. A. stepped into the fight for the second half flag by winning its second straight game in as many nights. The Odd Fellows were the victims in a game played at Edgely with the final count being: Hulmeville, 9; Odd Fellows, 3.

The first-half champions were credited with eleven hits off the hurling of "Johnny" Harmsen. Five of these were long doubles to the outfield, which aided immensely in the scoring. Incidentally the "Oddies" also were recipients of eleven hits off "Ike" Watson who with an early lead worked easily during the latter part of the fray.

The Hulmevilleites counted twice in the second, third and fourth cantoes and three more times in the fifth. The Odd Fellows scored one run in the second, third and fourth frames. In the fourth, a fast double-play prevented the Radcliffe street boys from adding several more runs to their total.

Line-up:
Odd Fellows: Sutton ss, Davis cf, Mason c, Purcell 3b, Scott 1b, Munster lf, Harmsen p, Dietrich rf, Bowman rf, Brown 2b.

Innings:
Hulmeville: 0 2 2 3 0-9
Odd Fellows: 0 1 1 0 0-3

GOOD TEAMS SCHEDULED TO PLAY IN THIS AREA

The leading clubs of the Delaware River League will be seen in action in this vicinity over the week-end. Tomorrow, the Hulmeville A. A. club will play the Edgely Braves at Edgely, while on the Sabbath Day, Hulmeville will entertain the rejuvenated Morrisville team and the Braves will cross bats with the Dolington club.

In encountering the Hulmeville club tomorrow, Manager Hibbs is fearful of his charges as the Hulmevilleites seem to hold a spell over the Braves and gave them their only defeat of the second half. Also, it was the Hulmeville team which started the Braves to their downfall in the latter part of the first half race of both the Lower Bucks County League and Delaware River League.

In an effort to secure a win, Manager Hibbs is planning to send "Chap" Gordan against the Blackmen. Gordan hurled against this club last week and did well considering the support given him. Hibbs thinks that his club will be in shape to back Gordan to the limit tomorrow. Devlin will hurl for the first half champions.

"Jake" Prall will do the bill work for the Braves against the Cornhuskers, Sunday. If Hibbs is uncertain of Prall, either "Johnny" Langan or Gene Gerhart will step to the mound. "Honey" Morrell will be on the receiving end of both contests.

Manager Howard Black will do the twirling against the J. Allen Hooper team which took a 13 inning game from the Dolington clan last week. Pitted against Black will be "Benny" Hartscough, the winning hurler in the extra inning game. Gene Santato will do the receiving for the Allisonmen with "Dutch" Afflerbach behind the plate for the Hulmevilleites.

Games are scheduled to begin at three o'clock.

FIRST-HALF RACE IS NARROWED TO 2 CLUBS

The Bristol Twilight League first-half chase has narrowed down to two clubs and these will be seen in action tonight. On Leedom's field, the league-leading Cubans will play the Casey's and at Tullytown, Tullytown A. A. will play St. Ann's.

A victory for the Cubans will clinch the first-half for them provided the Tullytown club is beaten. If Tullytown is victorious they have two postponed games to play with Edgely and Newportville. A win for the colored boys will assure them of at least a tie for first place.

(The Tullytown team will be weakened by the absence of "Billy" Leigh, who was declared ineligible by the officials of the circuit last night because he participated in a Lower Bucks County League tilt.

Games are scheduled to begin at 6:30 o'clock, sharp.

Bear and Doe Legal Quarry

Harrisburg, July 12—Bear and doe will be legal quarry for Pennsylvania hunters for three days next December but the deer season will be almost one-third shorter than last year. These today were the outstanding changes in bag limits and season dates made by the State Game Commission at its annual two-day meeting here. Shooting of does will be permitted only in a dozen interior counties where the herds have grown too large for browsing conditions, but it marked the first time since 1921 that doe have not been protected. The doe season will be December 12, 13 and 14, but hunters who bag a buck during the deer season from December 2nd to 11th inclusive, will not be permitted to shoot a doe. The twelve counties in which the open doe season was declared, are: Warren, Forrest, McKean, Elk, Cameron, Clearfield, Clinton, Center, Tioga, Potter, Lycoming and Pike.
